Running a business today is more than a full-time job. Fortunately, there exists technology to let you stay connected to your business no matter where you are. From mobile smartphones to remote access technologies, our mobile office encompasses a wide range of capabilities your team can take advantage of to always stay connected, even when working remotely.

Mobile Smartphones and Tablets

The smartphone market is booming with countless devices that make it easy for you to check email, sync your schedule, and keep track of contacts. We can help you find the best mobile platform and device for your needs, so you can always keep your business at your fingertips.

Remote Access

Connect from anywhere.

Remote access technologies have changed the way Pulse Technology Solutions works with our clients. It's increased our productivity and allows us to perform maintenance remotely, without the need for an on-site visit from a technician. Your business can benefit from remote access, too.

Whether you have multiple locations or have employees that work from home, we can help you establish a secure connection so your end-users can easily access mission-critical information and applications without incident. In fact, combined with VoIP solutions, you can offer telecommuting options to your staff, or expand your workforce without adding new desks to your workplace.

A business owner's responsibilities demand multitasking, even when you're out of the office on vacation or on a business trip.
